

We are preparing a new and clearer website!

As the saying goes, all evil is good for something. This is not very true for the current pandemic, but we now have at least time to improve our website. We believe that you will be satisfied with the change and you will find all the necessary information here quickly and easily.

You are already used to the look of our website and you are afraid that you will not be familiar with the new pages. So you definitely don't have to have that fear. The new website brings with it a changed design, but we tried to make everything as clear and practical as possible.

You will certainly appreciate the new division of items in the menu, which should speed up the time to find the required information.

You can still enjoy choosing one of the five languages, making our site accessible to absolutely everyone. Because translation into other languages is generated automatically by Google Translate, not all sentences may be perfectly worded. However, the substance of the communication will certainly be maintained.

So enjoy the new possibilities that the website offers you, and if you have any comments or suggestions, let us know by email, which you will find in the contacts section.

translated by Google

24/02/2021